Aims

The main aim of the course is to provide insights into contemporary Human Resource Management issues for MBA students who aspire to focus on Human Resources Management. Accordingly, the emphasis in this course is located in organizational culture, leadership, team working, trust relationships, conflict management and burn out at the workplace. The course material is based on Case Studies, Workshops, Published applied research with visiting experts and students’ class presentations.

Learning Objectives:

At the end of the course, students will:

• Understand the significant contribution of HRM practices in creating a competitive advantage
• Analyse and evaluate employment practices in different types of organizations and understand how these contribute to business performance
• Anticipate human resource management issues they may face in their careers
• Address typical human resource management situations with greater confidence
• Appreciate critical ethical issues that affect and are affected by the HRM environment.

Whether or not you have an interest in Human Resources as a career, everyone is likely to be called upon at some time to deal with “people issues”. This course will provide you with helpful information and insights.

Plagiarism

Plagiarism in writing research papers or taking tests in this class is not acceptable. It includes representing another’s work as one’s own, presenting or submitting any academic work in a manner that impairs the instructor’s ability to assess the student’s academic performance. Plagiarism also includes failure to use quotation marks around material quoted from any source. Plagiarism leads to an automatic grade of zero points for the designated test.
